Extraordinary Executive Control (EEC)

Daily Warning Report - 30 September 2026

Legacy / pre-revision model reconstruction

Normalized evidence index	Model state	Daily trend
32 / 100	E0 / E1 boundary	Baseline reconstruction

Executive summary

The event-centric EEC model shows an elevated but sub-transition environment. Federal election-related legal and administrative activity is observable, while no verified active-duty or federalized National Guard staging for polling-place operations, ballot control, or displacement of state/local election administration was identified by this date.

Indicator assessment

Indicator	Signal	Observation / interpretation
Legal / emergency authorities	Moderate	DOJ OLC opinions remain relevant, including the May 12 voter-data opinion and the August 14 Posse Comitatus/National Defense Area opinion. Neither is an election-military deployment order.
Federal election administration / enforcement	Moderate	Federal election-related investigative and data-access activity contributes to the background signal, but remains civilian in character.
Domestic military / Guard activity	Low	No verified election-related federalized Guard or active-duty deployment/staging identified.
State / local displacement	Low	No verified federal assumption of state or local election administration.
Institutional constraints	Strong negative	Existing statutory constraints and prior military statements against election interference weigh against escalation.

Assessment

Legacy-model assessment: elevated precursor environment, but the available evidence does not establish execution of extraordinary federal military authority or displacement of normal civil authority.

Comparison note. This PDF intentionally uses the earlier event-centric reporting structure. The 2 October model revision adds explicit L/A/O/Q/J/N precursor families, temporal clustering/decay, a hidden preparation state, and an E1-to-E2 execution gate. Therefore these values should be compared as model outputs, not as calibrated probabilities.
